

Is something missing?

Over twenty years of working with business owners, we developed The One-Life Game Plan. These planning and coaching services are exclusively designed for the special needs of business owners who want to surge ahead in both their personal and professional life, with both immediate and ongoing results. We look at several important areas of your business each year: time, people, health and spirit, the sales process, operational levers, money, and accountability.

This type of in-depth planning is not for everyone. For the right client, the ongoing relationship can be extremely helpful. Most business owners feel something is missing.

Owning a thriving business does not have to mean settling for second-best in the rest of your life. Our clients find themselves identifying more with this second owner. With The One-Life Game Plan™, we created a program to help people move in the direction of the second business owner. Through a continual planning process, our clients move towards their goals in life—not just in monetary goals, such as sales growth and growth in number of employees, but growth in the things that really matter to them.
